Situation in Chekiang Is Grave; Fiercer Battles Are Expected in Coming Week

Chinese Are Stubbornly Opposing Powerful Japanese Attempts at Quick Knockout in Eastern China; Announce Invaders Are Thrown Back at Walls of Kinshwa; Ferocious Drive in Progress

CHUNGKING, China, May 16 (AP)—The Chinese, stubbornly opposing powerful Japanese attempts at a quick knockout in Eastern China, announced today they had thrown the invaders back from the very walls of Kinshwa, but a spokesman soberly warned:

"The situation is still very grave and the coming week will witness even fiercer battles."

"We are entering what may turn out to be the toughest battles this summer in Asia."

The scene is in Central Chekiang Province, which fronts on the China Sea south of Shanghai, and from which bombers could reach Japan. An even larger Japanese onslaught is being prepared against Fukien Province, bordering Chekiang on the south, the Chinese spokesman asserted. He said the Japanese had thrown 10,000 men into the ferocious drive to conquer Chekiang, of which Kinshwa is the provisional capital.

Claim Retreat Cut Off

The Japanese claimed that they were in the outskirts of Kinshwa on the north and northeast, had smashed three Chinese divisions to the east, and that the strong four-pointed invasion had cut off the retreat of any remaining Chinese.)

The Chinese said they held Kinshwa as of last night, having inflicted 3,000 casualties on the Japanese who tried to storm the city from three sides and routed and virtually wiped out a Japanese force in the village of Wuipao, two miles south of Kinshwa.

Another 1,000 Japanese were killed or wounded north of Lanchi, forty-five miles north of Kinshwa, when a speedy Chinese column attacked from the rear, a Chinese communiqué said.

It credited Chinese field artillery with an important part in the defense of Kinshwa, saying Japanese artillery was prevented from going into action.

Lacking any support and under continual Japanese bombardment, the Chinese have clung tenaciously, and the spokesman sounded this note of guarded optimism today.

"It is hoped that our troops on the various fronts soon will be spared the pangs of battling against unequal odds without air protection and that new ways of transportation will be established speedily."

Hint in Comment

His only hint as to how this might be accomplished was the comment that the strengthening of India's defenses would be "valuable in maintaining our communications

O'Conor Will Not Answer Questions About Primaries

Governor Refuses To Announce Intentions at This Time

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 26 (AP)—Governor O'Conor asked point-blank today whether he intends to seek the gubernatorial nomination in the fall Democratic primaries, replied:

"I am making no comment at this time."

The governor then was asked: "Since elections are a part of the Democratic system, don't you believe it is your duty as a public servant to give the voters ample time to consider you as a candidate, if you actually intend to seek office again?"

"Whatever I determine," O'Conor answered, "the public will have ample notice. At present I am so enmeshed in the war program that necessarily politics must be a secondary consideration."

"I would say there still is enough time between now and the primaries for the public to weigh the merits of any candidate against another," he added.

Asked whether he believed it would be better for Maryland "not to change horses in the middle of the stream," inasmuch as the war is now six months old and the state already has initiated wartime measures under his leadership, O'Conor replied:

"I prefer to leave the decision up to the public. I feel the public is capable of deciding whether any officeholder returns to office and whether any officeholder is entitled to return to office."

Major Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore, O'Conor's Democratic foe in the last gubernatorial primary, has not announced whether he will seek the governorship in the coming election.

Lewis Refers to Murray as Former Friend in Speech before Committee

Neither Comments on Nature of Remarks Made at Long Closed Session

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS

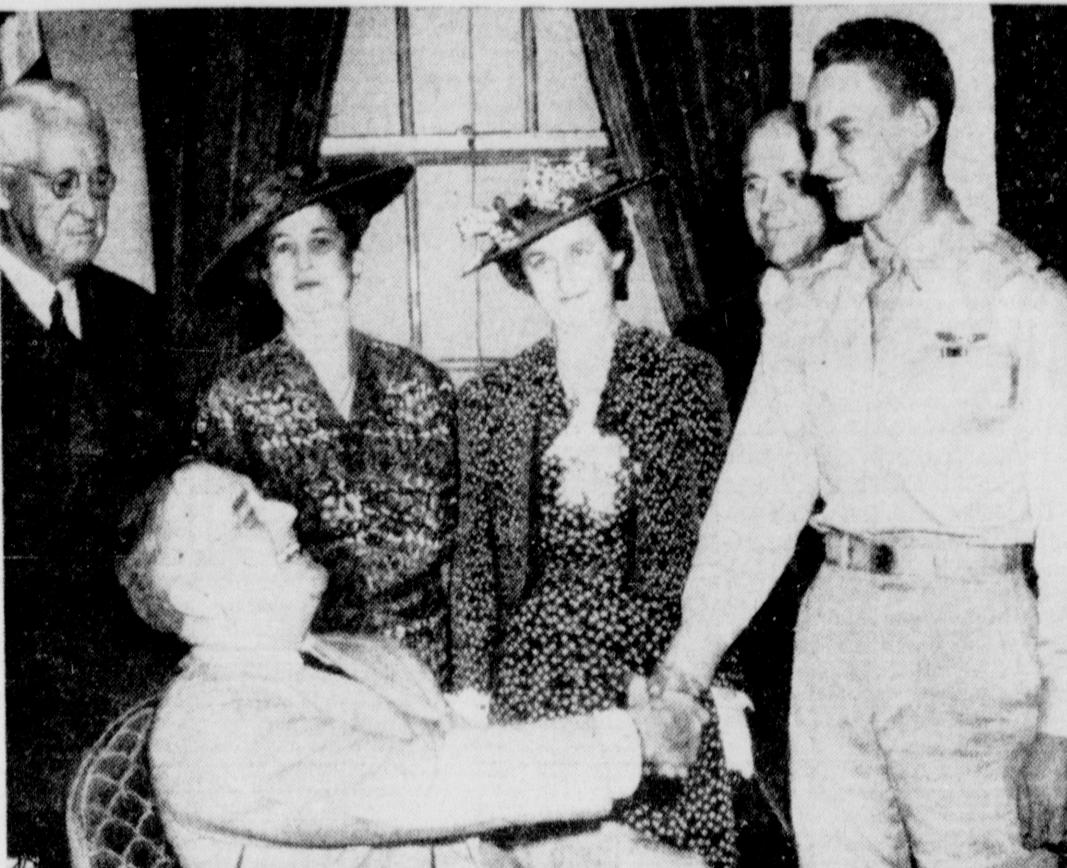

WASHINGTON, May 26 (AP)—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, made his estrangement from Philip Murray official today with a reference to the CIO chief as "my former friend" at a dramatic meeting of the UMW Policy committee.

Murray was emotionally overcome twice in replying, witnesses said. He told the packed meeting, which was closed to the press, that all the unpleasantness that has developed was hurt most by Lewis' reference to their friendship as "former."

Murray, who is still vice president of the mine workers, said if Lewis felt that way he was sorry and did not know what could be done about it. Afterward, neither would comment on the personal nature of his own or the other's re-

Senate Committee Approves Measure To Give More Aid To Dependents

Provides for More Liberal Allowances Than Those in Bill Now Pending before the House

WASHINGTON, May 26 (AP)—The Senate Military committee approved legislation today providing more liberal allowances for the dependents of fighting men than those in a pending House measure, and a priority system for the induction of family men.

The priority system would be permissive and not mandatory for the Selective Service System, but is designed to clarify by law the present practices of local boards in deferring married men, which vary in the board's discretion.

Highlighting the seriousness of these developments for the Allies, Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, who arrived in London after relinquishing his command of the British Mediterranean fleet, admitted that it would be "very nasty" if the French fleet were turned over to the Axis.

Roosevelt To See Hershey

Meanwhile President Roosevelt told his press conference that he expected to discuss soon with Major General Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, the question of lowering the present twenty-year age limit for selectees to make those of nine or eighteen eligible for military induction. The president expressed no opinion, however, as to the advisability of such a step, which would require legislation.

The bill approved by the Senate committee would require men in the service to allot $22 a month from their pay for dependent wives and children to take advantage of its provisions, instead of $20 required by the House committee's bill.

The Senate committee also increased the rates for the government's contributions beyond those approved by the House group. The Senate bill would have the government pay $28 a month instead of ($26 a month).

POHLHAUS REPORTS STATE PAYROLL IS FAR ABOVE AVERAGE

BALTIMORE, May 26 (AP)—Noting an employment increase in Maryland during April slightly above the nineteen-year average for the month, Commissioner John M. Pohlhaus reported a payroll increase "far above the average."

Pohlhaus is commissioner of labor and statistics.

Employment increased 1.9 per cent in the state's factories during April and payrolls jumped 6.4 per cent.

The average increase as shown by the department's records for April is 1.2 per cent in employment and 1.1 per cent in payrolls.

The report was based on returns made by 673 manufacturing establishments which paid $7,985,191 to 197,201 employees during the month.

Average weekly earnings in combined manufacturing industries in April was $40.49. An average hourly rate of 74.9 cents was computed with the average work week 43.5 hours.

Of the forty-three industries covered in the Pohlhaus report, fifteen showed employment and payroll increases, seventeen indicated employment and payroll increases and the rest had gains in one category and declines in the other.

Positions on Kharkov Front Are Reclaimed By Reds, Moscow Says

Allied Officials Thought Planning European Invasion

Conference of United States, British Strategist Fosters Offensive Talk

By J. WES GALLAGHER

LONDON, May 26 (AP)—The presence tonight of top ranking strategists of the United States high command at headquarters of this island fortress fostered belief that America and Britain were determined to strike hard at Hitler by sea, land and air to prevent him from concentrating his power on the effort to knock Russia out.

The task of the American military mission, led by Lieut. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, head of the army air service, was to work with the British to put into operation the speediest means of gathering sufficient land forces to smash Germany at the earliest possible moment, informed quarters said.

Confer with Arnold

Rein Admiral John H. Towers, chief of the navy's air force; Major Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, head of the operations division of the general staff; and Major Gen. Mark W. Clark, chief of staff of the army's ground forces were among the officers with Gen. Arnold.

Tower's sinking, details of which were not given, took place near Recife, several hundred miles to the south of the lower side of the Brazilian bulge.

Schwane and Yates said they sighted the U-boat from their plane between Fernando Noronha, an island about 125 miles off the Brazilian coast, and the Azores on Friday afternoon while on patrol duty and promptly attacked, dropping all bombs and at the same time calling up assistance from their land bases.

Sub Resists Furiously

The submarine was on the surface, Schwane said, and resisted furiously, firing its cannon and machine-guns.

Soon three more planes came up and they flew back and forth over the area, scattering bombs over a broad pattern.

Schwane, who already is a veteran of aerial fighting in Pacific warfare, said "I have not the slightest doubt the submarine was sunk."

All pilots of the planes saw huge quantities of oil and wreckage floating on the surface, he said.

A Japanese submarine attacked in the Pacific under similar circumstances was lastly confirmed by the navy as having been sunk, he added.

One of the problems facing Arctic patrols was to determine the light of British experience the types of planes the U.S. air force should use over the German-overrun continent. While American bombers are more than equal to the best types now used over Europe, United States fighters have been less successful.

Indeed, President Roosevelt later told a press conference that Russia was being placed on the same basis as everybody else under the Lend-Lease program.

This, in effect, would align Soviet Russia with Britain and the United States in post-war efforts to restore world trade on the principles long advocated by Secretary Hull.

The Anglo-American lend-lease agreement announced last February, it was recalled, provided that the precise and detailed terms of settlement should be postponed until the war is won and that repayment for goods and services rendered should be in such form as not to burden world commerce but to encourage it.

It provided for the return to the United States of "such defense articles transferred under this agreement as shall not have been destroyed, lost or consumed and as

President Terms Trip Another Victory Link

WASHINGTON, May 26 (AP)—President Roosevelt today described the trip to London of the heads of the army and navy air forces as another link toward winning the war.

Lieutenant General H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air forces, and Rear Admiral John H. Towers, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, headed the United States mission to Britain.

Reporters remarked that there had been a lot of speculation about a second front and asked the president whether the mission and the second front idea fitted together.

Well, he said, he didn't know,

House Committee Approves Bill Subjecting Unions to Prosecution

First of Three Major Labor Measures To Win Full Approval

WASHINGTON, May 26 (AP)—Legislation making labor unions liable to prosecution under the 1934 Anti-Racketeering act was sent to the House today by its Judiciary committee.

It was the first of three major labor measures to win full committee approval in recent weeks, and members predicted the other two would be acted on quickly.

Under these definitions, committee members said, intimidation by unions or the seizure of property would be punishable under the 1934 act.

The legislation was backed by spokesmen for farm groups and others who complained that union agents, especially in the New York area, had compelled drivers of trucks to employ union men to help them unload and in some cases had seized the trucks or their contents.

Hobbs Sponsors Bill

Sponsored by Rep. Hobbs (D-Ala.), the measure approved today in closed session does not mention unions by name but was drafted to offset a recent Supreme Court ruling that unions were beyond the scope of the 1934 act.

Violent German Attack in South Being Repulsed; Nazi Losses High

Sharpshooters Pick Off Parachutists Launched In Desperate Effort To Reinforce Invaders

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Wednesday, May 27 (AP)—Marshal Timoshenko's forces dug into their newly-won positions on the Kharkov front today after a deep advance from previously consolidated points while in the south the Red army is holding off increasingly violent German assaults upon their flank, the Russians announced officially at midnight.

The midnight communiqué said the Russians were rapidly fortifying their reclaimed positions, which frontline dispatches said were gained in a drive westward toward Kharkov on the right and center.

In their desperate effort to crumble the Russian Southern flank in the Izum-Barvenkova sector, Soviet dispatches said, the Germans hurled swarms of parachutists into the battle of men and tanks only to have them picked off by Red army sharpshooters before they hit the ground.

In the period of May 17-22 the communiqué listed 332 German planes destroyed against 127 losses to the Soviet air force. A slackening in the fierce aerial warfare was indicated by the statement that on Monday only eleven Nazi craft and eight Russian craft were downed.

Before Kharkov, dispatches from the front indicated that the Soviet was in firm grasp of the initiative, although the Nazis were digging in and offering the heaviest resistance and were said to be bringing out a new and improved Messerschmitt fighter plane—the Me110s—to meet the growing Red air strength.

Tanks Lead Nazi Charges

To the south, the most violent fighting was along the banks of a river (probably the Donets) over which the Germans were declared seeking in vain to force their way and were said to be bringing out a new and improved Messerschmitt fighter plane—the Me110s—to meet the growing Red air strength.

Cannons Ordered To Set Aside Entire Pack until Needs Are Determined

WASHINGTON, May 26 (AP)—The War Production Board today gave the army and navy first crack at all the salmon, sardines, mackerel and Atlantic herring to be canned in the United States this year.

Canneries were ordered to set aside their entire pack until the armed forces can determine how much of it will need. If any is left over, it may then be sold to the civilian public.

At the same time, WPB forbade future sales or delivery of fourteen types of general industrial equipment—such as elevators, electric motors of more than one horse power, industrial fans, compressors and pumps. An exception was made for repair parts worth less than $1,000.

In two particulars, however, the day's orders relaxed restrictions previously imposed.

Small gauge shotguns, odd caliber rifles, some .22 caliber rifles, and other types of firearms not needed by the armed forces were released for general sale to the public. Stocks of such weapons had been frozen since Feb. 27.

And the board made it possible for farmers and householders to buy wire fencing, poultry netting, fence posts, gates, staples and corrugated roofing, by rescinding previous orders which made them subject to priority ratings. The board explained that these items were in constant use and needed for the maintenance

Forest Fires Are Ended for Spring, Pfeiffer Declares

Woodland Loss Is Placed at Two-thirds of Entire 1941 Total

BALTIMORE, May 26 (AP) — Deputy State Forester Karl E. Pfeiffer estimated today the 1942 spring forest fire loss was two-thirds of the total Maryland loss in 1941 which he put at $301,182.

This, he said, totalled a loss of almost half a million dollars in Maryland woodland resources in the past eighteen months. The spring fire season in the woodlands has been ended by the appearance of green growth and considerable rain.

Barring unusual drought conditions, he said, there would be no further serious outbreaks of forest fires until the fall season starts.

Pfeiffer, announcing the 1941 forest fire loss, said the woodland blazes burned over 47,874 acres. Of these, 37,731 were burned during the spring season and 8,843 during the fall. The spring loss in 1941 was $262,288 against the autumn loss of $32,893.

Only one year on record, he continued, showed a greater damage total than in 1941. The 1930 loss surpassed the damage last year.

The state forestry department report showed incendiary was the cause of the greatest damage. The forest blazes set fires which burned over 7,665 acres for a total loss of $129,965. The acreage burned in incendiary fires was less than that destroyed by other causes but the damage figure was much higher than in any other category.

"Most of these incendiary fires," explained Pfeiffer, "were set by persons with a grudge against the owners of timber land. Naturally, they picked out good stands of timber to burn. They wouldn't set fire to woods which had been burned the year before."

Smokers did $71,092 damage in the state's woodlands last year and were responsible for the largest number of acres burned, 19,070. Brush fire burning led to forest fires which destroyed 11,662 acres at a cost of $64,544.

survivors of another ship, who were picked up by the Argentine ship Rio Iguazu after their vessel was torpedoed off Brazil, remained undetermined tonight.

The Italians claimed the survivors were United States seamen from a battleship sunk by one of their submarines, but naval sources here said that no battleships were known to have been operating in the area.

The Rio Iguazu had been expected at Recife, Brazil, but information available at that port said the survivors, if they should be United States seamen, might have been transferred from the Rio Iguazu to one of the United States ships patrolling in the region.

The Chinese said that they had surrounded and were threatening to annihilating a Japanese force on the west bank of the Salween River at the Hui Ling Bridge on the Burma Road, and that they had inflicted "unusual losses" on the Japanese by bombing the Japanese-held Chinese towns of Lungling and Tengyueh.

The Japanese meanwhile are consolidating a force of warships, including aircraft carriers, with troop transports at the Japanese island of Formosa, opposite Fukien Province, said the Chinese. The Japanese last week made heavy landing attacks on the Fukien coast.

maybe they did and maybe they didn't.

"Does it depend on what General Arnold concludes after talking with the British?" he was asked.

But Mr. Roosevelt dodged that one, saying his questioner was presssing him too closely.

Nor was he willing to assert that any reasonable deduction could be made from the fact that the American mission emphasized aviation. The next time he said, the mission might be entirely naval.

participation in British bombing operations.

Cite Another Angle

There is another angle on the sending to England of this prime American operating staff. Russian and Nazis forces have been locked in a tremendous struggle on a 200 mile front in the Ukraine for more than two weeks. Churchill's prediction of Nazi armies "bleeding and burning up their strength" is today an accomplished fact.

The implication is that Anglo-American moves in the west have been speeded up to take advantage of that fact. It reflects Washington-London judgment that Hitler is now too deeply engaged in Russia to halt or turn back, and that he can spare neither men nor planes to bolster his Western front nor to suppress growing revolts against him in the conquered countries where the bridgeheads for invasion of the continent lie waiting.

Violent German

Frontline dispatches said Cossack cavalrymen dismounted, took a bead on one Junkers loaded with paratroopers and sent it crashing to earth. Two more Hitler's trooper carriers were reported bagged by rifle and machine-gun fire.

In this area, said the Soviet command in its mid-day communiqué, a series of heavy Nazi thrusts had been repulsed with great losses to the enemy.

Of the main Kharkov front, this bulletin was restrained and for the second consecutive day claimed no general forward progress, merely reporting, "our troops consolidated their positions in the Kharkov directions."

Towers, Arnold and company arrived in London just as there were intimations from various sources of rising dissatisfaction in Berlin with the progress of Pierre Laval's "collaboration" program. Their coming synchronized also with fresh rumors of German efforts to obtain the remnants of the French war fleet.

Whatever the detailed mission of the Towers-Arnold group in England, or the time that may elapse before it bears fruit in joint Anglo-American offensive action against German targets, the fact that such action is in the works for early consummation is unquestionable.

Moreover, prompt publication of their arrival is an offensive phase of the war-of-nerves, obviously deemed more important than the possible surprise value of American

Commanders in London

Two weeks later the commanders of American land and sea based air forces are in London, flanked by an army operating staff of significantly high rank and assignment.

In Admiral Towers and General Arnold and their aides, the American command personnel for joint operations by air, and perhaps otherwise, is on the ground.

That their arrival in England must intensify both the public clamor on both sides of the Atlantic for second-front operations and the growing invasion jitters in Germany cannot be doubted. Nor will the presence of the American-Naval Military group fail to stir eager hope in Nazi-conquered countries—France, the Low Countries, Norway the House's $20 to a dependent wife and $40 instead of $30 to a wife and child. The $10 allowance for each additional child was the same in both bills.

The House bill would authorize the federal security administration to augment these allowances in "hardship cases." The Senate committee struck out this provision and adopted the higher allowance instead.

Provisions of Bill

Floor consideration of the legislation in both houses will await final disposition of the military pay increase bill.

Explaining the dependency categories provision, the committee said only two general types of persons would be in Class III if the provision became law:

1. Men with wives or children; there was a bona fide family relationship in the home and provided marriage took place before the United States entered the war.

2. Men with financial dependents who could not subsist on the allowances provided by the bill.

The committee also wrote a compulsory war risk insurance provision into the measure to require every man in the service to carry $10,000 of government life insurance. The service man would pay thirty-five cents a month per $1,000 of insurance, the government the remainder. For a $10,000 policy this would amount to about $3.50 a month for the insured.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Long maturing Anglo-American plans to bomb Hitler's home front in Germany are nearing the action stage to vindicate Prime Minister Churchill's recent assertion that "now is the time x x x to strike hard and continually."

The British and presently the American bombing offensive will be one of the principal features of this year's World War, Churchill added in that May 11 broadcast. "Now is the time to use our increasingly superior air strength, x x x now, while the German armies will be bleeding and burning up their strength against a 2,000-mile Russian line."

France Is Playing

While the Italians pressed for territory concessions to bolster home morale, Hitler was believed using Laval's reliance on him for protection against Mussolini to exact fleet concessions to Germany.

Continental reports indicated Laval's position with the French people would become desperate if he granted any territory to the Italians, but there was little he could do if Italy set out to effect an occupation.

May Grab French Fleet

Persons familiar with Italian conditions said that aside from Musso-lin's natural ambition for territory he might be interested in carrying out an occupation now to have a pretext for not sending 300,000 or more fresh Italian troops to the Russian front.

One reason for German impatience, said informants, is that Laval had found public sentiment much stronger against collaboration than he had expected and as a result had determined to go slowly.

There are indications, one London source said, that Hitler, far from being placated by Laval's concessions, is planning to grab the French fleet at Toulon by sudden use of paratroopers and Fifth Columnists.

Admiral Cunningham, who is going to Washington to head the British admiralty delegation there, declared that "Italy was nearly out of the war" at the end of 1940 but that Britain had lacked the "very essentials" to deliver the knockout.

Expressing "every hope" that efforts would not be undone now by the French fleet, he said the Allies had been building toward the day when their air and sea power in the Mediterranean would "rapidly and surely overwhelm" Axis forces.

Labor union spokesmen had opposed the legislation on the ground it was too broad.

Under it, persons convicted of robbery or extortion in interstate commerce would face a maximum penalty of ten years' imprisonment and a fine of $10,000.

Written in at the request of the defense transportation coordinator was a new title making the same punishment applicable to persons using force or intimidation, or threats thereof, to retard the movement of war supplies and service personnel.

Hobbs said he would seek early House consideration of the measure and said he knew of no reason why it should not be approved.

May Take Action Today

An official spokesman for the miners said considerable emphasis to the point that the union had not presented a bill to the CIO for repayment but had only written a letter asking that the miners be credited with per capita tax payments against the "loan."

February and March per capita tax was due when the CIO vice presidents acted on that letter, repaying that the money was not considered as a loan to be repaid in cash.

The miners' per capita tax is about $30,000 monthly, and three months' tax is now overdue.

"It is unfortunate," said the report to the UMW Policy Committee, "that the valid loans extended the CIO by the United Mine

The Withholding Tax Proposal

RISING DISFAVOR over the proposal to collect federal income taxes at the sources among both House and Senate members is now reported from Washington.

There are arguments on both sides of this question, but in the opinion of this newspaper those opposed to the proposal seem to be the weightier.

Proponents point out that the scheme would insure the government against individuals who may spend all of their money and have none left when tax payment time arrives; that it would serve as a curb against inflation by contracting purchasing power still further; and that it would be a real convenience to the taxpayer by virtue of the installment method whereby he would not be confronted with the necessity of paying large tax bill at one time.

But, on the other hand, the plan would be a further extension of the regimentation of the citizenry over which many have become apprehensive. It would abridge the freedom of the individual by taking from him the right to do his own budgeting and turning it over to government. It would also provide a further excuse for the extension of bureaucracy to the added expense of taxpayers. It would leave many persons with so little money out of their pay checks that they would have difficulty in meeting their various commitments, such as the payment of interest on mortgages, insurance premiums and like indebtedness. Also it would go to the opposite extreme of the need for further simplification in federal tax payments and cause endless confusion, delay and discrimination at the time of the March settlements.

There is serious question as to the validity of the argument that inflation can be cured simply by taking money away from people. As to the insurance for the government against the possible penniness of taxpayers, it might be well to note that no such insurance has ever been needed.

The odor of regimentation and bureaucracy that arises from the proposal ought to be sufficient to kill it.

The World's Largest Cargo Carrying Plane

MARKING not only progress in war production but also another step in aviation, a new giant cargo plane has come off the assembly line in mass production.

This is the Curtiss-Wright Corporation's great C-46 army cargo plane, which was christened the "Curtiss Commando" at ceremonies held Sunday at the company's Buffalo plant witnessed by thousands of company workers.

The plane, described by Curtiss officials as the largest twin-engined transport in the world, was offered to the army air forces by William Davey, general manager of the Curtiss airplane division plants in Buffalo, and was accepted by Maj. Clyde M. Mitchell.

The all-metal craft is capable of carrying fifty fully-equipped soldiers or field artillery and reconnaissance cars at high speeds to critical points on widely-scattered battlefronts.

It is achievements like this that will not only help to win the war but to speed the victory.

A Good Suggestion That Falls a Bit Short

MRS. ROOSEVELT says in the June issue of The Ladies' Home Journal that she thinks college tuition fees should be deducted from some parents' income tax returns.

The opinion was expressed in reply to a question whether she thought parents who sacrificed to send children to college should be allowed such deductions.

"It seems to me to be an expense which could be very well considered deductible," Mrs. Roosevelt wrote. "It would be very difficult to differentiate between those who make a sacrifice to send their children to college and those who send them when their incomes are adequate to do so. If this could be proved, a request might be made to the Treasury department for a ruling."

Mrs. Roosevelt is all right as far as she goes, but she stops quite short of what would be the just and reasonable thing. Many taxpayers have often wondered why there should be allowances for children under 18 and nothing for them during their college years when the expense of their maintenance is frequently distinct hardship upon the family calling for some relief. That is the period of the young people's lives when they really cost some money and entail real sacrifice for many parents.

Tuition fees ordinarily are but a small fraction of the expenses borne in keeping the youngsters in college. In the case of most of the land grant colleges that is free to youths residing within the state. In all fairness, the exemptions granted for children under 18 should be extended to those who are in college when it can be shown that such an exemption is fair and reasonable, and the size of the income ought to determine that.

A Drafting Mistake Is Corrected

THE WAR DEPARTMENT has finally taken a step to correct one of the most obvious and serious mistakes in the draft system. It has announced that after June 15 the army will be directed to furlough draftees home for fourteen days following their final acceptance and induction.

Under the system which has been in effect since the draft was started, draftees have been compelled to go through all the induction process without knowing, until their processing by the army was underway, whether they would be accepted. They have then been rejected or sent home, or sent to training centers. This put the draft boards in an embarrassing position, for some of the blame fell unjustly on them. In many instances inductees were subjected to avoidable hardship and strains on family and work relations.

The new plan will enable draftees to continue their normal relationships at home until they are called for army examination. In a day or two they will know whether they are in the army, or are not to be taken into the army under the prevailing requirements.

If accepted, they will have plenty of time to arrange their affairs, and their communities will have time to hold the farewell celebrations which Secretary Stimson has suggested and which the people are eager to provide as a means of expressing their pride and appreciation.

This evidence of army co-operation with draft boards will be welcomed as in the spirit of democracy at war.

The Pay-Rollers In Washington

ACCORDING TO a Civil Service Commission report of May 12, there were 238,000 civilians on the federal pay roll in Washington on March 31. Employees were being added at the rate of 7,000 a month.

Probably 50,000 of these employees are necessary to the proper operation of the government's departments and the bureaus which contribute to the increase of national wealth and the health and welfare of the people. Many of these employees are competent and industrious. They are not overpaid, by Washington standards.

Another 50,000 are manning New Deal bureaus. They were brought in to pay political debts after March 4, 1933. On that date, 66,000 civil employees were on the federal pay roll in Washington. By 1941, before Pearl Harbor, the number had been increased to 167,000. It is believed that fully half of the 100,000 that were added between 1933 and 1941 are mere pay roll riders, kept at useless jobs to satisfy the demands of politicians.

The remainder may be charged to the war effort, but it is significant that the number of civilian employees in Washington is now more than double the 117,000 who worked there during the First World War.

Washington has become not only the center of the war effort, but the refuge of thousands of pay-rollers who are a drag on the war effort, a disgrace to an administration that is asking school children for dimes to help MacArthur, and a warning of things to come if the social visionaries are allowed to go on plundering the country's producers.

Soften at Home

"During the years in which the president and the secretary of state were indefatigable in denouncing the treaty-breakers and aggressors, American liberalism at home was growing disillusioned with soft pragmatism and social idealism. Candor and respect for the pledged word was still held up as indispensable to the proper conduct of international relations, but in domestic policy a canny sense of expediency, always on the point of passing over into the Machiavellian, was the order of the day. Historical accident, rather than conscious plan, thus created for the New Deal a dilemma in the discrepant systems of value which underlay its foreign and domestic policies.

"The absurdity of expecting to maintain peace by adherence to principles of international justice embodied in legal formulae and implemented in written compacts, while at home, with equal insistence, the cry is raised for the rule of expediency and government by men rather than by documents, could remain unrecognized only until the denouement of Pearl Harbor confronted the American people with the reality of nationalist aggression.

So that's a catalyst—a chemical that causes changes in other substances but itself remains unchanged.

Human beings attempt to be catalysts in many ways. They try to do things, think thoughts, without changing—and they never succeed.

Fine young businessmen think they can cut sharp corners and still be "fine young businessmen." But they harden.

Husbands think a few little flirtations will make no difference in their married life. But they do make a difference.

Wives decide to grow old gracefully—without having any children—and still keep their husbands' love. They lose the very happiness they seek.

You can do nothing in this world without changing for the better or for the worse. Once I heard a young bank clerk in a booth telling a friend of a perfect scheme he had evolved for stealing $100 a month "without a chance of being caught."

Of course he never intended to use that scheme, but he knew it could be worked. And he really believed he could work out such a plan without changing in the slightest in the direction of dishonesty.

Perhaps he could, but I don't believe it.

You cannot hate without changing. You cannot break a friendship, or bring about a marriage, or spread a bit of gossip or carry a piece of good news—you will find, if you watch yourself closely, that you are not as you were.

You cannot do a mean thing "just once" and then forget it. You cannot do anything just once without thinking about doing it again. You can't be a catalyst and it's silly to do.

Liberal Philosophy Lost in Militarism, Writers Contend

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, May 26.—It isn't often that one encounters a philosophical diagnosis of the shortcomings of liberalism. It is, therefore, interesting to note an article just published by the South Atlantic Quarterly, written by John and Helen Mattingly, of Hamilton college, and entitled "Climax into Shadow: a Scenario for Liberals."

Attacking first the "liberal pacifism" which for nearly twenty-five years dominated the thinking and writings of liberals, the authors declare that "the liberal mind simply refuses to count the cost of its moral superiority in terms of lives lost and treasure wasted because of its stubborn refusal to make adequate military preparations for a military issue in advance of the precipitation of the conflict. Here, if anywhere, is exemplified the firm conviction of pragmatic liberalism that failure is not failure if it is motivated by pragmatic attitudes free from any narrowing preoccupation with traditional prejudices."

"If not in September, 1939, or the months following," the writers cite as a conspicuous illustration of the foregoing, "surely in May, 1940, when the Germans had overrun Holland, even a liberal having access to military intelligence might have been expected to understand the implications of German militarism for the future of Europe and Asia. Yet the New York Times for May 15 (1940) printed a report of a press conference in which President Roosevelt rejected with scorn the idea of a two-ocean navy.

Branded As Stupid

"Mr. Roosevelt brushed aside as utterly stupid suggestions that developments in the European struggle and their implications in the Pacific strengthened the arguments for a 'two-ocean American navy,' . . . such a conception of the nation's floating defenses was just plain dumb, he added."

"Since, upon admitted principles of strategy, the advantages of a two-ocean navy are self-evident, it is surely as a symbol that Mr. Roosevelt anathematizes the idea of a two-ocean navy, a symbol of the surrender of a number of darling liberal illusions, a symbol of the failure of the New Deal's foreign policy to provide the security essential to the consummation of its domestic purposes. The true liberal, upon the very eve of Pearl Harbor, remained stubbornly convinced that war is 'not really life' and felt reasonably secure so long as he could hear the voice of some great symbol of democracy visiting the unspeakable tortures of moral humiliation upon international evildoers."

Another 50,000 are manning New Deal bureaus. They were brought in to pay political debts after March 4, 1933. On that date, 66,000 civil employees were on the federal pay roll in Washington. ## Bell Airacobra Flown to Battle

American Planes Piloted to Various Parts of the World

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 26 (AP)—"We are in the business of making airplanes and we are making airplanes of extermination," President Lawrence D. Bell of Bell Aircraft Corporation says.

Bell's problem, he said, is not a question of production—which has already been settled satisfactorily—but a need for experienced ground crews to keep the planes in condition to fly.

The Bell Airacobra, the most deadly ship manufactured for pursuit fighting, is now being flown to battle stations in various parts of the world. It is a fast reliable ship, powered by a liquid-cooled engine with a number of guns including one cannon.

Need Men on Ground

"What we need, now that the problem of plane production is settled, is enough men to keep the ships operating," Bell told correspondents on the National Association of Manufacturers' "Production for Victory" tour.

An airplane pilot is a temperamental engineer who knows how to fly the ship, shoot the guns and bring her back to where she came from without anything missing. But the men we need—not only here but in other countries where our ships are flying—are ground crews which can see that the planes are properly filled with gasoline tested for firing accurately and which will not let

Women Important

Women are becoming increasingly more important in the airplane industry, Bell declared, because they are willing to accept work under almost any condition and "they have a greater desire to get the job done than men."

Bell disclosed for the first time that his Airacobras are being flown to their fighting stations. With special equipment which has recently been added to these planes, they can make the long hops necessary.

NO ROOM for WASTERS....

Your Uncle Sam frowns on people who throw their money away. Wasting is Sabotage! Extravagance is a threat to our victory effort. Avoid buying things that aren't absolutely necessary. Don't pay a penny more than you need to pay for the things you must buy. Bear that in mind when you go out to buy new clothes—whether for yourself or the rest of the family.

Here at The Goldman Store you couldn't be extravagant if you wanted to be. Goldman's policy is to keep prices on apparel low... Goldman's prices are famous low prices because all waste has been eliminated... profits have been cut to the bone. If you need new clothes come to Goldman's and save. ### Stores To Push War Bond Sales

Nothing Else Will Be on Sale for 15 Minutes July 1

WASHINGTON, May 26 (AP)—You won't be able to buy anything but war bonds and stamps in the stores from noon to 12:15 p. m., on July 1.

The suspension of normal business has been arranged by the Retailers Advisory committee of the treasury to signalize the opening of the treasury's campaign to sell $1,000,000,000 worth of war bonds in the months of July alone.

Starting in that month, the treasury hopes to sell that many bonds every month.

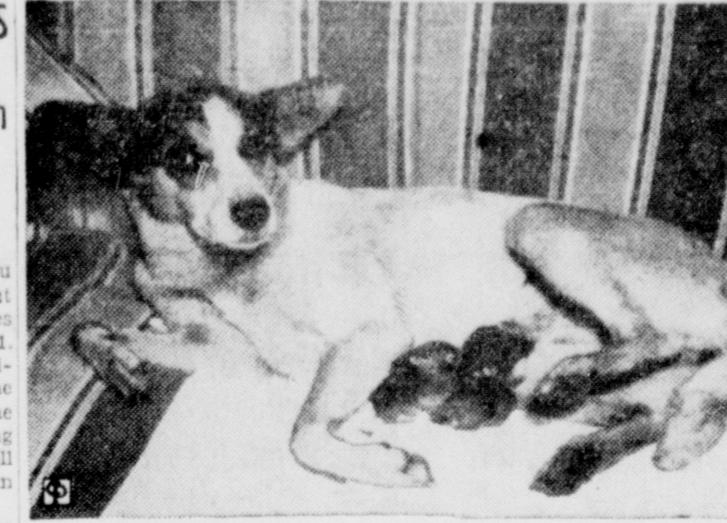

Benjamin H. Namm of Brooklyn and G. Ray Seeger of Chicago, heads of the retailers' group, explained the plan at a press conference. They displayed thousands of telegrams from stores pledging cooperation.

The plan is to ring all the bells, sound all the factory whistles, make all the other noise possible at noon July 1 and then stop all commercial selling for fifteen minutes while war bonds and stamps are bought and the governors of all the states deliver radio sales talks which will be broadcast in most stores.

done when a force moves a mass against resistance, when one form of energy is transformed into another. The human muscular system is essentially no different from any other machine in that it transforms one form of energy into work. It is different in that it is hooked up with the nervous system which the machine does not have and which causes it to show fatigue in a certain length of time.

Muscular Work

The physiologist distinguishes three kinds of muscular work: Maximal, heavy and moderate. Maximal muscular work cannot be maintained continuously. It is defined as the amount of work which yields an average metabolic rate of eight or more times the basal metabolic rate. Maximal muscular work can be done for a short period of time as that is to say about 12,000 calories in very vigorous sports, but need for rest periods is imperative. It is rarely required, however, in industry.

Heavy work is defined as the amount which yields from three to eight times the basal metabolic rate. It has been suggested that this can be maintained for eight hours. This includes the heavy manual jobs in agriculture, building trades, mining, heavy industry and forced marches with a heavy load. The person performing heavy work has a reduced margin of safety in regard to heat dissipation and heart action.

Rest and Efficiency

To enforce heavy work for an eight-hour period is not economical. The story is told of two officers at the front who, for a friendly wager, competed in making equal lengths of trench, each with an equal squad of men. One let his men work as they pleased, but as hard as possible. The other divided his men into three sets, each working five minutes and resting ten. The latter easily won.

Moderate muscular work is defined as the amount which yields less than three times the basal metabolic rate. This is the usual category of work that most laborers in industrial plants perform. There is little or no drain on reserve muscular energy. The increase in oxygen consumption, heart rate and blood pressure are slight. Fatigue occurs during the performance of this kind of work on account of the hook-up with the nervous system, which I mentioned above.

All these forms of work produce fatigue for different reasons and we are naturally interested as to how this fatigue is produced, how it can be prevented and what form of recuperation is considered most scientific and physiological. This, however, I will take up in the article tomorrow.

Answer: Yes, to both questions.

Mrs. H. C.—My family have the habit of eating oranges before going to bed at night. Friends have told me that "Oranges are golden in the morning but lead at night." Please advise me if this is true.

CHAPTER THIRTY

WHEN WAYNE told Tibby that he had bought the beautiful silver ship that she was flying just for her, that she could have it, and him—if only she were willing, Tibby was so stunned that she could not possibly answer. He had said, "You know that, don't you, my dear—that that is what I want?" But she had not known. She had guessed, of course, that their friendship might lead to something more. Wayne had suggested that, but he had spoken of it as in the far-away future. Tibby could not know that he had not meant it to come this soon, either. He had not even meant to speak so soon, while they still were high up in that dark sky, among the stars, but he had spoken, so now she must give him some answer.

"Aren't you going to answer me?" he said, leaning toward her, trying to see the look in her eyes. "Have you nothing to say, my dear?" His tone now was gently reproving. After all, he had proposed marriage to her, a hostess in his company, a little girl from nowhere practically. Fanatic still, when one thought of it in that plain way.

Tibby said, "I can't answer. Not right away. You've given me too many surprises. I hoped they would be pleasant ones. You like the ship, don't you, my dear?"

He did not realize that he said that as one might in appealing to try to buy the affection of a child. In effect, "See the pretty it I have brought you. You like it, don't you? Therefore, you must like me."

"Of course," Tibby's answer, even to this, was brief, reluctant. Perhaps she felt now that it had held reservations. Wayne had said he had bought the ship for her. You could not accept such a wonderful gift, enthuse over it, if you felt you might not be able to keep it.

"If you don't want it," Wayne said, still as one would to that difficult child, "I shan't keep it. That was the arrangement."

"Oh, but you shouldn't have," Tibby protested. She meant that it had not been quite fair to count on her acceptance of such a gift, on her acceptance of himself, which was what was implied. She had agreed to be friends, but she had not given him any reason to feel that she could give him more than friendship. She had come to like him, to admire him very much. She found him exciting, but she was not at all sure that that was love. Nevertheless, Tommy had said that the person one loved must be exciting, not someone well known and familiar. Why should she think of Tommy now?

"Why shouldn't I? I want to give you things, everything your heart desires," Wayne said. "I can, you know," he added. That should count for something, even if she did not love him, for now he knew what she did not. That was another hurt that went deeper, my dear," he told her, "whether you love me now or not, if only you'll marry me, if only you'll promise, at least, to think it over."

Wayne Courtright was begging, pleading with this girl at his side, this girl with her head in the clouds, flying the silver ship, thrilling only to that. It was indeed fantastic. Now he realized that he could not appeal to her as one might to a child. She did not care for all the things his money could buy her. She was not like other women in that—Tibby again, for instance. She wanted something more, something that all the money in the world, all the background and heritage could not give. That he realized further, was why he loved her.

"I... I'll try," Tibby said. She wished she could say more. She wished she could promise to think it over, giving him hope that she would give the answer he wanted. Maybe it did not matter whether she loved him or not, or was certain. Maybe your heart did not tell you, maybe as Wayne was thinking, she demanded too much.

"That's all I ask," Wayne said, although of course it wasn't, but he surprises. I hoped they would be pleasant ones. You like the ship, don't you, my dear?"

He did not realize that he said that as one might in appealing to try to buy the affection of a child. In effect, "See the pretty it I have brought you. You like it, don't you? Therefore, you must like me."

"I must make up your mind." Therein, after all, did lie a bigger hope to cling to. She had not refused him. She had not said she could not come to care for him. If she had not said yes, she had not said no.

"I will," Tibby said. As soon as she could, although she had hoped to postpone all thoughts of love, of marriage, for a long, long while.

It seemed you couldn't. It seemed that people fell in love whether they wanted to or not, whether you wanted them to or not, either. She had hoped, one day, to have someone fall in love with her as Wayne had now, wildly, irrevocably. She had wanted a "Great Love." So she had thought that night when Tommy had proposed to her, only to withdraw it almost immediately. In weighing the love he had offered her, she had found it lacking because there had been no romance with it. Well, now there was romance enough, surely, flying high up in the dark clouds, with billions of twinkling stars all around, and beneath, other twinkling lights of the earth, like glimmering reflections, with the moon full and bright for added measure.

Why, she had even dreamed of someone like Wayne to complete the picture, someone strange and dark and exciting! He was all of that and more. He was the sort of man any girl might dream of, wish to come riding, as the fairy books of old would have phrased it. Only this was a modern fairy tale, the rich man proposing to this Cinderella, offering to fulfill all her heart's desires, giving her a beautiful silver ship to fly, laying his heart at her feet high up in the sky.

Wouldn't she be a very foolish girl indeed to refuse so much, to ask for more? She ought not even need time to think it over. She ought to grasp at the chance with greedy fingers. Her heart ought to leap with joy, instead of still being filled with doubts and questions and evasions, instead of going on in its lonely search.

There was no one else. Probably no one else ever would come into her life, certainly no one who would give her more in every way, romance included, than Wayne. Tommy was only the past, a childhood memory, no longer even that old playmate with whom she had shared so much.

Yes, Tibby would be a very foolish girl, indeed, if she did not tell Wayne—and very soon—that she would marry him.

Since her heart, and her good common sense as well, told her that much, maybe it was answering all the rest along with it. Maybe it HAD spoken at last.

They Live . . . If You Remember!

Few things are more precious than the memory of the loved one who has gone. As Memorial Day approaches, let us all give more than passing thought to those who meant so much to us, but who are now gone. A visit to the cemetery—a few flowers on the grave—these are the manifestations of our love and reverence for them. Let us not forget, for truly "they live—if you remember!"

"Profiteering" on War Contracts Refuted by National Manufacturers

CHICAGO, May 26 (AP)—The National Association of Manufacturers has made public a report designed to refute charges of industry "profiteering" on war contracts. The brochure concluded that profit margins on gross business were narrower since 1930 than they were in the preceding decade chiefly because of the growing "tax burden," and added:

"Under the defense and war production programs, net profits before taxes have risen largely because the increased volume of business has reduced overhead costs per unit. However, direct costs, especially taxes, wages and raw materials, have been cutting into net profit margins."

Labor Costs Higher

"Increased labor costs since 1940 have not been offset by increased output per worker. The higher taxes since 1941 have drained off too much of the profit. Since the tax load will increase much further during the next two years we may expect a further narrowing of the profit margin."

The study said the House Naval Affairs committee issued a report which "led many to believe that the majority of contractors are reaping exorbitant profits." The association analyzed 1907 completed naval contracts and offered these findings:

Findings of Survey

Of 1,013 general contracts, the median profit was 6.9 per cent of cost but probably would be reduced to about 3.4 per cent after taxes had been deducted.

Of 717 contracts for aircraft, the median was 8 per cent before taxes or an estimated 4 per cent after taxes.

Of 115 ordnance contracts the median profit was 7 per cent of cost, but this would be cut to about 3.5 per cent by taxes.

Of sixty-two contracts for naval vessels, the median profit was 4.9 per cent but probable taxes would reduce it to 2.9 per cent.

The survey—entitled "Record of Manufacture Profits"—opposed an arbitrary limit on profits but advocated "maximum" excess profit taxation as proposed by the House Ways and Means committee.

War Production Chief Ad-dresses Purchasing Agents

NEW YORK, May 26 (AP)—Anyone who wastes materials needed in the war effort is "going to be considered a traitor," Donald M. Nelson, War Production Board chief, declared at the twenty-seventh annual convention of the National Association of Purchasing Agents here.

"In fact, it is treasonable right now," he added.

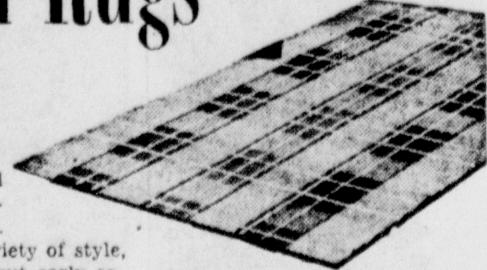

Nelson said he confidently expected that before the end of the year "there will be nothing in this country that won't be produced for either civilian economy or for the war effort."

He said the annual rate of expenditure for war production reached $41,000,000,000 this month and he predicted that it would increase to a rate of $60,000,000,000 a year by this fall.

"Today we are the custodian of most of the raw materials," he said, "and we must keep sending material to England, Russia, South America, India and Australia. Some of the most critical materials we have are going to Russia—but they are killing Germans. And no better use can be made of them."

Parents Often Teach Children To Know Fear

Suspicious Put into Words May Do Youngsters Great Harm

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

There is no light in the pantry and it is nearly dark.

"I wish you would go to the pantry for some carrots," says mother. Dan starts off but soon returns with, "I'm too tired, mother." Now, Dan, you know you are fibbing. You are afraid. There is nothing to hurt you."

Dan is five. The mother suspects that he was afraid should have accepted his explanation without suggesting that he was afraid or was misrepresenting the fact. She should have gone herself, or have offered him a reward.

"I have brought this girl in to you today, doctor, because she won't eat what she should. She just worries me to death. We have awful scenes at the table sometimes. She upsets the whole family. I thought you could tell me what to do."

Don't Lose Poise

Sylvia, seven years of age, is sitting there while her mother pictures her eating problems in great detail and describes the annoyance to the mother by the child. Sylvia never had a happier moment. She discovers that she not only had been forcing the family to pay her a great deal of attention at home, but that her mother had grown desperate over her conduct.

When you go to see your doctor about the child whose conduct you wish to correct, it is wiser to leave the child at home, for the first visit at least.

You are sitting at the dinner table and Toby drops some remarks about his teacher which suggest to you that she has done something of which you strongly disapprove. Suppose you, by a remark or gesture, indicate that you are displeased by what the teacher is alleged to have done. Then you do her an injustice making a judgment from a one-sided and, no doubt, biased testimony; you encourage your child to engage in unkind remarks about persons in their absence.

You also damage your child's character, his education, and you help to waste the tax money you have paid. If you think some things are not going right at school wait a few days until you regain your poise, and then have a word with the teacher in the child's absence. If you are a mother, be a lady; if a man, be a gentleman. It will pay.

A list of books on manners for adults and children may be had by writing me at 235 East Forty-fifth street, New York city, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

HONEYMOONING

Mr. and Mrs. Remulo O'Farrell, of Mexico, are shown upon their arrival at Miami, Fla., via Pan-American clipper from Mexico. They are newlyweds and are honeymooning here. The bride is the daughter of Gen. Maximino Avila Camacho, Mexican Minister of Communications.

Her textbooks are hard for her to read.

A. Read aloud most of her assignments to her and help her turn each paragraph into a few words of her own. In return for this, prevail on her to read to you or herself for fifteen minutes each evening from interesting material of about fifth grade difficulty, in order to improve her reading skill. You may have without cost to you a copy of my "Tips to Students," by writing me at the above address, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Girls Who Work In Offices Often Have Problems

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX—Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage—Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

What do you think about this problem of Betty's, who girls who have worked in offices and who have encountered rather melancholy young married men—and older ones, too—who weren't happy with their wives, or led you to believe so? You know how sorry you can feel for these self-pitying husbands and that companionable fellows they often are.

Should a girl allow herself to form a friendship with such a man go out to dinner with him, a movie, perhaps a dance, all because she thinks he needs sympathy?

Betty is 23. She's intelligent, fairly well educated, and I am sure she must be pretty. She has a well-paying position in a business office, and a pleasant home. She is sweet, generous and warm-hearted. Her best boy friend has joined the Army.

Have Lunch Together

There's a man in her office for whom she's sorry and, as she was lonesome, she went out with him several times.

"I've come to know quite well a man of 35 who is employed by the same firm," she writes. "It's no secret that he is married and has two children. But I think I'm the only one who knows how unhappy he is, and what a selfish, hard-hearted, extravagant wife he has. She doesn't understand him at all."

"I've been out with him several times to lunch and we get on beautifully together; he is very honorable. Now he would like to have me dine with him once or twice a week and see a play. I don't see what harm there'd be in it, but I suppose it would have to be secret. What do you advise?" the letter concludes.

Does this interest you? Shall we run the risk—and a large risk it is—that this guarded platonic friendship will promptly develop into a love affair with most painful consequences for the husband, the wife, and, most of all, for herself? Or shall she, like a sensible modern girl, face the facts in the case?

Recommended Course

Shall she admit that a man has no right to claim a girl's sympathy on the strength of having an un congenial wife? Shall she call the whole thing off without a day's delay, telling herself that she must never indulge for a married man that warm, soft, pitying feeling that is innocent, maternal, sisterly friendly, or whatever you like; a feeling that is certain, sooner or later, in one way or another, to cost her dear?

This is the course I have advised Betty to follow:

My suspicion is that this agreeable young man isn't so un-happily married after all. Or perhaps his wife has much more to complain of than he has. If his misery is genuine and his life one that cannot be borne, he should secure his own freedom before making confidences that are likely to arouse the pity—and, later on, the love—of the Bettys that he may meet.

Do you agree with me?

He's Much Older

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Three years ago I started going with a man who is now 50 years old. I am just 30. At first it was just congenial companionship, but this has blossomed into a very beautiful and, I sincerely hope, a lasting love. When he's not with me I think of him all the time.

He has told me he loves me, but he thinks he is too much older than I am, and says he wants to see me ideally happy. I've tried my best to tell him that his age never enters my mind, that I love him very much, but he will not listen to me. He just repeats that if he were about fifteen years younger, I would not be running around unattached.

People will say I'm foolish to think of marrying a man so much older than myself, but in my case, I assure you, it is not foolishness; neither does money enter into the matter.

Will you please give me your honest opinion?

MAID OF THIRTY

Your widower seems like one of those men who doesn't realize his blessings. Certainly there's nothing unsuitable in the marriage of a girl of 30 to a man of 50. In your case, where the friendship began with congenial companionship and ripened into love, there's every reason to expect happiness. Have patience. I'm sure he'll change his mind before long. Best of luck to you both.

One-Sided Bargain

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been married five years, and we have a darling little girl of two years. When we were first married, my husband and I used to go everywhere together, but since the baby came he goes alone. Is it because he's tired of me, or doesn't he want to be bothered with a baby?

Every day is the same with me. I never even go to a movie. He goes visiting or goes to shows in the evenings, while I have to stay home with the baby. Don't you think he ought to take turns with me, so that I can get a little change of scene once in a while?

We have two rooms, and board with some friends. Do you think if we had an apartment where I could do the cooking, he would be more satisfied to stay at home with me?

SICK AT HEART

You have my sincerest sympathy in your troubles. Nowadays almost any man with a sense of responsibility which having a home might restore. The experiment seems worth trying—anything and everything is worth trying when it's a case of marriage failing and a little child not having the right sort of home in which to develop.

Aspires to Theatre

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Although I've had many girl friends, I have never gone with any one long enough to get serious. I am ambitious for a career and aspire to be an actor. I believe I have talent in that direction.

Everyone tells me I should study for that as I am more attractive than other young men my age. I am 22 years old. When I'm at dances and parties, all the girls are very nice to me.

Defective vision prevents my being in the Army. My drawback is that I have had only a grammar school education and not much money to invest in trying to get started. Do you think I should take up dancing as a start, and then take personality training? Would this give me a better chance? I will do anything you tell me.

DAVE

You have taken stock of your assets and liabilities, and the next thing is to set about to fit yourself for the stage career you have chosen. First, look up a good night school to supplement your grammar school work. These classes are usually held three evenings a week. Next, take up dancing or voice-training, both of which are essential to an actor. Then look around for an amateur theatrical club. A great many actors and actresses have had their start in little church plays. Try to get into such a club as soon as you feel you are ready. My best wishes are with you.

He Takes Out Other Girls

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The boy I've been going with has always told me he loves me and that I'm the only one for him. But what am I supposed to expect when he tells me he can't see enough of me, and then turns around and accepts an invitation from another girl to attend a party with her, to which I'm not invited?

Does this show her tickle or that he's out for a good time, but still loves his girl friend just as much? Don't you think if he cared as much for me as he says, that he would refuse to take the other girl and would not go at all since I wasn't invited? We're all in our late teens.

WONDERING

Since you ask me the true lover's point of view, it seems to me a young man who is very deeply in love with one girl would probably care to accept invitations which do not include her.

However, as you are not engaged to this boy, it is perfectly proper for him to accept invitations. And for you too, for that matter. See as much as possible of your other boy and girl friends. Invite little groups to your home for dancing or games including this young man, but don't let him know that you feel hurt because he sees other girls occasionally.

Unreasonable Soldier Boy

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The boy I have been going with for several months has enlisted in the Army and is now in his training period. He is stationed at a camp 200 miles away and cannot come to see me as often as he'd like. He expects me to be here whenever he does come, but sometimes this is impossible. I don't know when he comes, and as we're not engaged I don't think I should stop dating other boys.

The last two times he came, I happened to be out with another boy. This made him angry and he told my girl friend that he was through with me and wasn't coming back any more. He imagines I don't love him, which isn't true at all, as he's the only boy I do love. I don't want to give him up, but if he keeps on being unreasonable, there's no other way out.

DISCOURAGED

I think, as you do, that this young man is rather unreasonable in not letting you know of his visits, and then becoming angry when he doesn't find you at home. Why not write him a letter and put the case squarely up to him? However, there's another way of looking at it—if he didn't care for you he wouldn't be so unreasonable and jealous. I hope you've become reconciled by this time, and that everything is all right again.

During the Napoleonic wars the sugar shortage was so acute that Napoleon offered a reward to any scientist who could produce sugar from products available on the Continent.

War Board Heads Allegany County And FDR Differ on Has 5,082 Persons Rubber Situation In Defense Units

President Thinks Substitutes for Tires Can Be Developed

WASHINGTON, May 26 (AP)—President Roosevelt expressed hope today that certain tire substitutes would be available before tires now on the road wear out and said he thought civilian transportation difficulties would be solved satisfactorily.

At the same time, the president told his press conference, it is necessary to save rubber and the methods to accomplish this are still to be worked out.

Nelson Sees Henderson

Donald M. Nelson, war Production Board chairman, conferred with Leon Henderson, price administrator, Arthur B. Newhall, rubber co-ordinator, and Isadore Lubin, an economic advisor, and emphasized at another press conference that rubber would be unavailable for civilians.

Mr. Roosevelt gave no details on the substitutes for tires which he spoke of but remarked that he did not attach very much over-excitement to the matter.

Nelson said he assumed Mr. Roosevelt was expressing the same hope he himself had voiced for substitute materials.

He saw, however, but little assurance that this would be the case, and reiterated that no rubber, including synthetics, was in sight for civilian tires within the next two years.

Newhall, said he was hopeful that "we'll find something useful—but it won't be made of rubber."

WPB, Nelson said, "discussed with Eastman the rationing of transportation as applied to rubber-tired vehicles but it doesn't look as if it would be administratively possible to get it under way by July 1."

This date has been frequently mentioned as the possible starting time of nation-wide gas rationing. Eastman had been instructed to prepare a plan for such rationing as a means of conserving rubber. His plan was subject to the approval of the WPB.

Nelson said no steps were being taken officially toward the commanding of tires and that a special act of Congress would be needed for that in any event. However he said a plan would soon be announced under which car owners could voluntarily sell extra tires to the RRC.

"It looks like rationing gasoline is the simplest method of allocating cars," he added.

Discuss New Pipe Line

Mr. Roosevelt also said he expected to talk with Henderson soon, and also expected shortly a report on the proposal to lay a pipe line across Northern Florida to relieve the gasoline shortages in the East.

This line, he added, would cost about $9,000,000. Funds for it are contained in legislation pending in Congress, he said, but he suggested that to expedite matters he would be willing to allocate money to it from a special emergency fund which is at his disposal.

Meanwhile, the Senate's Special Defense Investigating committee urged both the armed forces and civilians to save rubber because "it cannot be said that the problem is solved."

If synthetic rubber is not obtained on schedule," said Chairman Truman (D-Mo.), "the army and navy may find themselves without rubber at some future time. It is perfectly clear that there will be no new tires for civilians during the next three years."

During the day, in addition, Ralph K. Davies, deputy petroleum administrator, told the House Interstate Commerce committee the rubber supply situation was "critical" and said nationwide gasoline rationing might become necessary for that reason.

The president said work was in progress on two or three kinds of tires which require no rubber. If people got them, he said, and drove them twenty-five to thirty miles an hour, they could get to town all right.

Decontamination Squad Stages Demonstration In Constitution Park

An audience of 200 persons gathered in Constitution Park last evening and witnessed the demonstration put on by the decontamination squad from Zone No. 1, West Side, headed by D. A. LaCoss, zone leader.

Sixty members of the decontamination corps and fifty messengers were numbered among the spectators at the demonstration, which lasted one hour and thirty minutes.

Appointment of Charles G. Smith as chairman of the American Legion Boys' Camp committee was made last evening at the regular meeting of Port Cumberland Post No. 13.

The committee will consider the names of several candidates for the post of camp director to replace Patrick Conway, who is now in the United States armed service and will make a decision within the next several days.

The annual camp of the Legion will be conducted at Stillwaters, near Flintstone, during the four weeks' period, July 19 to August 15. Newton Parish has been retained as camp cook.

A Red Cross first aid course will be inaugurated tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. at the Legion home and will be in charge of Louis Millholland, Legionnaire, members of the auxiliary unit and other interested persons are invited to take the course.

Officers Elected By Church Group

Mrs. Grace Williams Rice, of Centre Street Methodist church, was appointed for the third term as district director of the Cumberland sub-district Cabinet of the Methodist church, at the Young Adult rally last evening at the Centre Street church. The Rev. Lewis Ransom, Lonaconing, was chairman of the nominating committee.

Other officers elected are William W. Beale, First Methodist, Cumberland, commissioner of worship; Miss Dorothy McDonald, Cresapton, commissioner of social action;

Miss Alma Logsdon, Frostburg, commissioner of recreation; Miss Florence Shaffer, Centre Street, city secretary; Raymond Nine, Kingsley city, treasurer; and Mrs. Rhoda Clingerman, Mt. Pleasant, publicity chairman.

The necessity of keeping up the morale and spirit of the boys away in the service was stressed by Dr. John W. Link, Westminster, in speaking on the reserve force of the home front in keeping with the theme of the meeting "Keep 'em Flying."

The spirit and morale of those at home must be kept up in order to help the boys, the speaker pointed out. In revealing past wars and peace treaties he showed how a lasting peace could not be founded on a treaty which disregards the principles of Christianity.

Among the latest units to make reservations at the camp near Millison's Mill, W. Va., are Troop No. 9, Cresapton, Troop No. 32, Romney, and Troop No. 2, of the Baltimore and Ohio Y. M. C. A. Cumberland.

Four troops can be accommodated at the camp each week. Twelve troops went to camp last summer.

ELKINS AMONG CITIES TO HAVE AIR SERVICE SUSPENDED TEMPORARILY

WASHINGTON, May 26 (AP)—The Civil Aerodynamics Board today ordered suspension of air transport services at twenty-five cities in order, it explained, "to secure the greatest possible amount of service from a limited number of airplanes."

Further service suspensions may become necessary, the board said, but added that all suspensions made because of the emergency would be restored when war requirements eased.

The orders issued today affected eighteen routes or segments of routes. The exact time of the suspensions was not given, but the board said that it was not expected that service at all points would be discontinued simultaneously.

Elkins, W. Va., was among points at which service will be discontinued temporarily.

Spiritual Guidance Not Lacking In U. S. Army; Able Chaplains With It in Training, in Battle

Chaplain's equipment mechanized

By BERT H. DAVIS
Central Press Writer

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 26—Twenty minutes before reveille this morning, two long-legged men in running gear were trotting through an Army post near the capital city.

Since early spring, their sunrise sprint has been an all-out substitute for peacetime's daily dozen. The two runners cover two miles of post roads, ending with a sprint along a cinder right-of-way along the post's main railroad spur.

One of the track men is a personnel officer, who used to teach in an Illinois high school.

The other is Chaplain Jack Raymond, former pastor of a New Jersey Presbyterian church—and before that, milk-truck driver, lifeguard at Long Island beach and member of a fast eastern relay team.

Each of these top-notchers serves an average of 1,200 men, and he no longer carries on such duties as management of mess or post exchange or entertainment programs, like chaplains of other times.

Chaplain Jack knows it's a compliment to him to place him in the front yard of the big post, where men just entering the Army meet him, attend his services and come to him for counsel. But he wants to "get going," so that he can go into action with fighting men.

One of these days," says the young preacher, "I want to move on with the men who are going into replacement training transfer. Chaplain Jack's associates are a Catholic priest, close to his own age of 28, and a Methodist minister who is five years older. All such chapels in the Army serve Jewish,

Protestant and Catholic flocks, and two or three chaplains have their offices and equipment in each of these tidy, attractively finished buildings.

The new chapels take the place of makeshift quarters in a recreation hall or camp theater, such as

Board Officials Sign 851 Diplomas For New Record

Card Punch and Machine Operators Sought, Kopp Advises

Edgar A. Dashell, president of the Allegany County Board of Education and Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools, are suffering from a mild case of "writer's cramp" after having affixed their signatures to 851 diplomas which are to be presented to high school graduates of the county at exercises scheduled for this weekend.

In addition to the signatures of Dashell and Kopp, each diploma contains the name of Thomas G. Pullen, Jr., state superintendent of schools, and the principal of the school attended by the student.

Kopp said that the total of 851 graduates is the all-time high for Allegany county high schools, and ninety-nine above the 1941 figure.

Fort Hill high school heads the list with a record number of 238 seniors.

The number of graduates receiving diplomas this year as last year are as follows:

School	1942	1941

Maryland Soldiers To Vote by Mail

Gov. O'Conor Issued Proclamation for Coming State and National Elections

BALTIMORE, May 26 (AP)—Governor O'Conor today issued a proclamation providing that Marylanders in the armed services may vote by mail in state and congressional elections this year.

The Governor said the Army and Navy had agreed to help distribute the ballots, which will be sent to about 110,000 Maryland soldiers, sailors, marines and nurses who were granted absentee voting privileges.

A similar vote-by-mail system was tried in 1918 but only a few took advantage of it.

A clearing house through which mail will be forwarded to service men will be established by Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, Third Corps Area commander, and Adjutant General Francis Petrot of the Maryland State Guard.

The Governor said he believed this system, plus cooperation of the various services, would result in "the widest possible exercise of the voting privilege."

Service men receiving ballots will be eligible to vote in the September primaries and the November general election.

plants into a pan of kerosene. Spraying the beetles with pyrethrum as soon as they appear is also suggested, but strike the insect with the spray, which kills by paralyzing them. Repeat as new beetles appear.

Cabbage, tomatoes and sweet corn should not be cultivated much after the plants have begun to grow well, except for mere scraping of ground with a garden scuffle hoe to kill weeds, so that roots close to the surface will not be injured.

During the growing season keep a daily watch on your plants. Don't wait until they are heavily infested to get busy. Dust or spray at first appearance of a pest or better still as a preventative before you see any.

Soup celery or cutting celery is not blanched. The tops are cut when three or four inches high, for use in soup flavoring. The tops grow very rapidly and can be continually cut throughout the season.

Careless picking of peas and beans frequently disturbs the plant's roots. The vine should be held with the left hand while the pods are removed with the right hand.

When purchasing potatoes for seed remember that the better the seed the better the crop will be next fall.

Every ten days from the middle of August string beans can be planted for a fall frost to harvest.

50,000 Maryland Boys To Register

BALTIMORE, May 26 (P)—Maryland is expected to contribute some 50,000 young men between the ages of 18 and 20 to the next selective service registration in June.

State draft officials said today the census bureau in Washington had estimated there were approximately 41,000 men 18 and 19 years old in the state and approximately 9,000 who have reached 20 since the first of the year.

Those 18 and 19 cannot be drafted for military service, but might be mobilized for service in war plants, the officials said.

State draft officials indicated today the new registration would increase appreciably the rate of enlistments among the young men.

No Extra Gasoline For Pleasure Trips

BALTIMORE, May 26 (P)—State OPA officials warned today that supplemental allotments of gasoline would not be issued to persons who used the major part of their ration for pleasure driving.

The warning was brought by a return yesterday of Sunday drivers to Maryland highways.

Officials said motorists first applied for ration cards recorded the average daily mileage driven in pursuit of a gainful occupation or in getting to and from work. In applying for a supplemental card, the motorists will be required to state what card he holds.

Rationing boards will then estimate the number of "pleasure" miles driven, the officials added.

Coach Hubert Radcliffe's Allegany High Campers did the LaSalle High Explorers a good turn in more ways than one yesterday when they closed their 1942 baseball season by toppling Coach "Bobby" Cavanaugh's Fort Hill High Sentinels 5-4 at Campobello.

Allegany's triumph, paired with the Explorers' 8-4 decision over Hyndman (Pa.) high tossers at Campobello, boosted the LaSalle aggregation into first place in the Tri-State Conference ahead of Fort Hill and also enabled the Blue and Gold to deadlock the Sentinels in the race for the city championship.

The West Sideers' victory may force Fort Hill to play off its tie game with Hyndman in addition to meeting Paw Paw (W. Va.) high in a postponed tussle here this afternoon and LaSalle on Friday at Fort Hill in a game moved back from last week on account of weather, before the conference title can be awarded. The return clash Friday between the Hillmen and Explorers will decide the city crown, won last season by Fort Hill.

AHS Rallies To Win

Allegany, in scoring its only victory in the intra-city series, came from behind after Fort Hill had tallied all of its runs in the first three innings. Don "Lefty" Lee started on the peak for the Campers but was relieved by Milt Athey, who twirled the last five frames.

Each team gathered only six hits with Cecil Grimes going the route for Fort Hill. Athey and Francis Derner of Allegany were the only boys on either team to get more than one single while Earl Drennan, George Conway and Ed Lowery of Fort Hill and Bob Williams of the Campers each connected for a double.

Allegany exploded for three of its runs in the third. Jimmy Hess walked and stole second, Athey singled and stole second. Williams doubled and Derner followed with a single.

The Campers manufactured another tally in the fourth when John Gorman banged out a home run and wrapped up the game in the sixth when Lee was safe on an error, advanced on a fielder's choice and counted on Athey's second hit.

Doubles Help Sentinels

Fort Hill's opening-inning run was the result of Paul Whitford's single and stolen base and Lowery's double. In the second, Huffman was safe on an error and toured the rest of the sacks on Drennan's two-bagger. The other Sentinels runs, coming in the fourth, were the result of a single by Grimes, a double by Conway and Fred Davis's single.

Grimes struck out nine to Athey's six and Lee's one and issued three bases on balls to three for Athey and one for Lee. Athey pitched a tight ball in the pinches with nine Sentinels left stranded on the bases.

Big Johnny Small registered his fifth straight victory at Hyndman, twirling eight-hit ball. The Explorers also garnered eight blows off Pitchers Gerald Harden and Glen Evans but timed them just right with seven of the safeties figuring in the scoring.

LaSalle pushed across four runs in the third when Jim Laffey was hit by a pitched ball and stole second. Bobby Stakem walked, Barney McGann singled and Ronald Palmer singled, took second on an error, reached third on a wild pitch and counted on an infield out.

Stakem Trapped

The Explorers made two more tallies in the fifth when Stakem walked, advanced on a wild pitch but was trapped between second and third with Ron Palmer safe at first. After Palmer stole second, Ralph Esposito singled and took second on the throw to the plate and George Geatz followed with another one-base rap.

LaSalle concluded its scoring with two runs in the sixth. Small singled, pilfered second and advanced on an infield out. Laffey doubled and McGann singled.

Stanley Brooks's single, Don Harclerode's single and an error gave Hyndman one run in the fourth.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, May 26 (Wide World)—Taking a short cut:

These are two nice farms the Brooklyn Dodgers have at Chicago. Babe Dahlgren is the fourteenth Dodger who has served time either with the Cubs or White Sox. In addition to Dahlgren, the Cub graduates include Augie Galan, Curt Davis, Billy Herman, Larry French, Dolph Camilli, Kirby Higbe, Newell Kimball, Hugh Casey and Coach Red Corriden. The White Sox once had their hands on Dixie Walker, Billy Sullivan, Whit Wyatt and Frenchy Bordagary. Should Brooklyn give the Windy City a cut in the pennant? Or at least credit for collaboration?

We have maintained all along that Bo-Bo Newson was too heavy for his own good, but we never suspected he was carrying so much weight he'd break down someone else's frame. The injured shoulder of George Case, Senator speedboy, was coming along nicely until the exuberant Bo-Bo, bouncing into the dugout from the dressing room, playfully put a hammy hand on the squatting Case's shoulder to vault over him. The shoulder went back into splints. Charge Bo-Bo with an error.

When Merle Stewart of the Kearney, Neb., state college track team was a freshman he placed fourth in the quarter-mile event in the Nebraska intercollegiate conference meet. When he was a sophomore he placed third in the same event, when a junior, second, and May 8 of this year, as a senior, he won. Which just goes to show the benefits of a higher education. Wonder where he would finish if he took a post-graduate course?

One way and another, time still manages to move along and write its story, through war and peace. Seventeen years ago I stopped off with Ring Lardner at Paso Robles, California, where Pittsburgh's Pirates were training. Stuffy McInnis, Connie Mack's star first baseman, was at that time a member of the Pirate squad. He was telling us about such young stars as Pie Traynor, Glenn Wright and a kid by the name of Paul Waner.

"I want you to come out and see this young Waner hit," Stuffy said. "Hit what?" Ring asked. "A thing known as a baseball," Stuffy said.

"I've seen a flock of these young fellows come and go, but I've never seen a rookie who could nail that ball so often between the seams as Waner can. I'm going to show you a fellow who will be a great hitter before he is through."

So Ring and I went out and took a look at young Paul Waner, the phenomenal rookie who hit every ball on a line.

He is now only a few base hits away from the 3,000 mark, and when he reaches this goal Paul will stand out among seven men who belong to the 3,000 hits or more group.

In this flogging phalanx Ty Cobb has set a mark that no one will ever approach. The Georgia Peach, now moving in restless fashion between California and Idaho, finished with 4,191 hits.

But it's still something to pass the 3,000 mark, and the kid Waner whom Stuffy McInnis showed Ring and our correspondent that far-away and long ago day at Paso Robles is on his way to turn the "all-time six" into the "all-time seven."

Since that Paso Robles visit Waner has led the National League three times—380 in 1927, 362 in 1934, 373 in 1936.

We'd like to pass a wreath of wild apple blossoms along to Stuffy McInnis as one of the star prospects. Stuffy called the turn so completely that something should be done about it. There must or should be a place in this world today for one working prophet.

The Rookie Crop

This was supposed to be the year when the rookie crop would be completely unimportant, cut down by the sweeping scythe of the draft. This shows again how far off the track a prophet can wander at times.

The veterans, especially those married with families to look after, even those on the down grade, were

Nats Notch 8-3 Triumph behind Steve Sundra's Careful Pitching

PHILADELPHIA, May 26 (UPI)—The Washington Senators swept their two-game series with the Philadelphia Athletics, notching an 8 to 3 triumph behind big Steve Sundra's careful pitching today.

Sundra allowed eleven hits, only two less than the Senators got off Luman Harris and Herman Besse, but he tightened in the clinches.

The Nats shelled Harris from the mound after six innings, which included Jake Early's first home run of the year which sailed over the right field wall in the sixth with the bases empty. They continued their assault on Besse, and racked up an entirely unexpected brace of markers in the ninth. The box score:

Navy Teams End Campaigns Today
Two Competitions with Army Are Scheduled for Annapolis

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 26 (UPI)—Navy's spring sports squads, already assured one of the best all-time Naval Academy seasonal records, ring down the curtain on their 1942 schedules tomorrow, meeting the perennial foe—Army.

While only two competitions are scheduled here, the comparative season's records practically assure Annapolis a double-barreled feature in the staging of the baseball game and track meet.

Traveling to West Point, Navy's once-oceanic lacrosse, its undefeated tennis team and impressive linksmen are scheduled to oppose the Greylegs in their own ballfield.

However, Army's nine, loser of only five contests in fifteen, crosses bate with a Navy team very likely to rebound from last Saturday's defeat at Georgetown's hands. The Hoyas' 10 to 2 triumph snappet a Midie victory streak of ten games and, coming directly before the Army clash, doesn't figure to set well with Navy's diamond hands.

In track, Navy's sprinters, licked but once this year, meet an Army cinder combine that has lost only one dual skirmish in two years and has run roughshod over all 1942 foemen.

Tomorrow's track feature, moved up from June 6 to enable both service squads to climax their campaigns in the IC4A roundup at New York Friday and Saturday, starts at 3:30 p.m. an hour after the baseball contest begins.

Harry Cooper Wins PGA Medalist Honors

Corporal Jim Turnesa and
Sam Byrd Cop Runner-up Laurels

By GAYLE TALBOT

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 26 (AP) — The golf form that made Harry Cooper one of the game's most sensational competitors in the middle thirties appeared suddenly to have returned as he sailed around the Seaview Country Club course in 67-71 the last two days to capture medalist honors in the qualifying test for the P.G.A. championship.

Little considered when the professionals gathered for their annual alugfest, the baldish star from Minneapolis thrust his way into the forefront by the way he tore into Seaview. Those who followed him were predicting he would give the Nelsons and the Hoganas and all of them a terrific argument in the thirty-six-hole matches starting tomorrow and continuing through Sunday. The Englishman veteran never has won a national championship.

Turnesa, Byrd Card 139's

Cooper's thirty-six-hole total of 138 won him the medal by a single stroke over Corp. Jim Turnesa and Sammy Byrd, the former baseball star, each of whom carded a two-day 139. Turnesa, now stationed at Fort Dix, scored 67-72, and Byrd copied him to the letter. Craig Wood, the National open champion, held down the 140 bracket all by himself with successive rounds of 70.

The two most feared competitors in the field, Byron Nelson of Toledo, and Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., shared the 141 berth with big Ed Dudley, the P.G.A. champion, while at 142 were bunched Lloyd Mangrum, Willie Goggan and Bruce Colgate, the home club professional. Mangrum's 68 was low for the second round.

The two qualifying rounds produced their casualties. Both Walter Hagen, a five time P.G.A. king, and Gene Sarazen, three times winner went into the discard. Hagen scarcely was expected to be among the qualifiers, but Sarazen shot a three under par 69 on his initial round and ballooned to an 80 today. The little squire was miserable from an attack of sinus.

Playoff Fills List

Joe Turnesa and Al Watrous were left stranded with two-day totals of 148, while such links giants as Horton Smith, Johnny Revolta and Ralph Guidaldi found their 150's among the discards. Others who will be on their unhappy way home tomorrow included Clarke Morse of Wellington, Mo., who ran the gamut from a dazzling 69 yesterday to an 81 today. Corp. Ed (Porky) Oliver also found his 151 insufficient.

A "sudden death" playoff was necessary to fill out the list of thirty-one who will join Corporal Ghezzi, the defending champion, in hand-to-hand matches.

Eight were tied at 147, and only five places were open in the championship round. Paul Runyan, Herman Barron and Tom Mahan of Beverly, Mass., drew the beans. Each went over par on the first hole while the fortunate five, which included Sam Parks, Jr., of Pittsburgh, a former open champion, managed regulation fours.

Ghezzi, who defeated Nelson on the thirty-eighth hole for the championship at Denver last summer, did not complete today's round but picked up after playing four leisurely holes.

Pairings Announced

Following are the pairings for first round matches in the P.G.A. championship starting tomorrow (all times EWT).

9:00 Corp. Vic Ghezzi, United States Army vs. Jimmy Demaret, Detroit.

9:06 Bruce Calart, Seaview club vs. Tom Harmon, Montclair, N. J.

10:12 Corp. Jim Turnesa, United States Army vs. E. J. Harrison, Camp Hill, Pa.

Peck's Estimate

CLEVELAND (AP)—Roger Peckbaugh, Cleveland vice-president and former American League infield star, rates Charles Gehring, long-time Detroit over Joe Gordon of the Yankees as a second baseman. He thinks Gehring's hitting gives him the edge, although he says Gordon may be a bit better in the field.

Braves Conquer
New York Giants

MacPhail Convinced
There's a Place for Early Evening Contests

BOSTON, May 26 (AP)—Still holding determinedly to second place in the National League, the Boston Braves pounced on on old nemesis, Lefty Cliff Melton, for three runs in the first two innings today and went on to beat the New York Giants 4 to 2.

Al Javery pitched six-hit ball for the Braves and in spite of three errors by his teammates retained control of the situation except in the third inning, when a wild throw by Third Baseman Nanny Fernandez let Bill Jurgens go all the way to second. Dave Koslo, rookie relief pitcher then doubled to left and Nick Witke doubled both runners home.

After watching the league-leading Dodgers and the last-place Phils play before 9,572 fans in the twilight yesterday, Brooklyn's head man said today he's convinced there is a place for occasional games starting in the early evening.

"Yesterday's crowd was just about what I expected," said MacPhail. "It was less than we would have drawn had the game been played at night and more than if we had played it in the afternoon."

"We'll probably not make a definite decision until around June 10, but I believe spot twilight games might be the answer to the black-out of night ball in New York."

MacPhail said he was not considering playing all of the Dodgers original scheduled night games at twilight, but probably would spot a few of the league clubs in contests starting at 6 p.m. or even later.

Unsung Assistant Mentors

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, May 26 (Wide World)—Quick now, and no fair peeking—who will coach football next fall for Duke and Fordham, and U.S.C., and Minnesota, and Nebraska, and Stanford, and Tulane and Holy Cross, and Boston university, and Illinois?

Sure, we know you know who inhabited those places last year. Big name guys, mostly, some of whom you associate with the schools as you associate bread with butter, or cheese with crackers.

They are gone, some of them only for the duration, but gone nevertheless, and in most instances their places are being filled by a lot of guys named Joe as far as the football world is concerned.

Not that these Joe's aren't capable enough. It's just that many of them have been advanced from assistant football professors, and there is no better way to hide than to get a job as an assistant football professor.

Were it not for the war and the fact that many head coaches have joined the armed forces, this tendency to employ anonymous fellows to fill the gaps might be seen as a trend toward de-emphasis.

Lawson Is at STANFORD

But when a coach quits for patriotic reason, a school can't very well go out and use a gold blackjack on some big-name mentor to get him to come and fill in for a fellow who by all that's right should be able to step back into his job when the shooting is over.

Here are a few of the changes in the coaching lineup:

Stanford—Jim Lawson, an assistant, succeeds Clark Shaughnessy who took job at Maryland.

U.S.C.—Jeff Cravath, from San Francisco U., succeeds Sam Barry, in service.

Duke—Edmund Cameron, assistant, filling in for Wallace Wade, in service.

Minnesota—Dr. George Hauser, assistant, filling in for Bernie Bierman, in service.

Nebraska—Glen Presnell, assistant, filling in for Bill Jones, in service.

Tulane—Claude "Little Monk" Simons, assistant, succeeds Red Dawson, resigned.

Purdue—Elmer Burnham, fresh coach, succeeds Mal Elward, resigned.

Brown—Frank Crowley, in service.

Illinois—Ray Eliot, assistant, succeeds Bob Zuppke, resigned.

Washington—Ralph "Pest" Welch, fresh coach, succeeds Jim Phelan, resigned.

Michigan—Sam Parks, Jr., of Pittsburgh, a former open champion, managed regulation fours.

Yankees Overwhelm Boston Red Sox, 9-2

Champions Raid Three Pitchers For 13 Safeties

Henrich, Keller and Crosetti Get Homers; Donald Gives Six Hits

NEW YORK, May 26. (AP)—The New York Yankees raided three pitchers for thirteen hits, including three home runs, to overwhelm the Boston Red Sox 9 to 2 today behind the six-hit hurling of Ailey Donald.

The slender righthander kept the Red Soxers suppressed except for the third inning when Pete Fox singled and long Ted Williams smashed his twelfth home run of the season deep into the assembly of 600 soldiers and sailors in the rightfield stands at Yankee stadium.

First-Inning Show

Even this tremendous blow was an anti-climax, however, for the world champions already had provided the more than 11,000 customers with a show in the first inning.

Little Frankie Crosetti led off with a walk and coasted across the plate on a towering home run by Tom Henrich, his third of the year. Then Joe DiMaggio singled and Charley Keller, who had been in a hitting slump, followed with a line drive into Boston's bull pen next to the bleachers in rightcenter. It was his fourth homer.

All of these blows were at the expense of Joe Dobson, who gave way to Lefty Ken Chase at the start of the second. The southpaw was tagged for two runs in the third when Charley Keller singled, went to second on an infield out, and scored on a single to right by Bill Dickey, who promptly raced all the way home on Phil Rizzuto's single to deep left.

Crosetti Hits First Homer

Crosetti led off the fourth with a single. He was forced by Henrich, but with two out Joe DiMaggio dropped a high fly into the rightfield corner for a triple, scoring Henrich, and a single by Joe Gordon brought home DiMaggio.

Bill Rutland went to the mound in the fifth and was immediately tapped for Crosetti's first homer of the year, but kept the Yanks in check thereafter. The box score:

Hoppe Uses Same Cue for 38 Years

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26 (Wide World)—Willie Hoppe, the billiards champion now giving exhibitions at army camps, has used the same cue for thirty-eight years.

"It's extremely well balanced," he says. "It weighs nineteen ounces but feels like seventeen. The tip, of course, has to be continually replaced."

A short, slightly portly man, with thinning gray hair, Hoppe presents an anomaly in his eyesight. He wears glasses for reading, but in the delicate sighting of expert billiards he leaves them off. His sense of touch and weight are, of course, highly developed.

"There's no particular training for billiards," explains the 54-year-old champion. "I watch my diet, get plenty of rest and do a good deal of walking. The chief strain in billiards is the nervous one."

Three in Same Year

Donie Bush, who later managed Pittsburgh and Cincinnati in the National League, played with three pennant winners in 1908. He started the season with South Bend in the Central League, was shifted to Indianapolis in the American Association and finished with Detroit in the American League.

Mauriello Is a Menace of Tomorrow, Admits Heavyweight Champion Louis

By IRA WOLFERT

NEW YORK, May 26.—As a champion moves around the country mastering the opposition from his own generation and watching the next generation grow up, he naturally looks out for the fellow in the next generation who will beat him when his time comes. Joe Louis thinks that may be what he found in Madison Square Garden the other night when he was studying Tammi Mauriello and Bob Pastor in their match to a draw.

Pastor isn't the one, of course, he being today when Louis is at the peak of all his numerous excellencies. But Mauriello is tomorrow. He is a kid who is just out of his baby teeth and hasn't got his full growth yet and he will be ripe and full of juices three or five years from now when Louis can expect to be on the way down.

Lot of Iffs

This is all plenty of iffy, but it's a notion that came unbidden into Joe's mind while the fight was going on. If times were normal (as they are not), if Joe is permitted to continue in business (as he likely will not be), if he is willing to go on fighting (as he may not be) he may get an inclination to retire undefeated.

If Mauriello keeps his nose on the wire, to use the army saying, if there isn't some unknown ball of fire out in the country now or hidden in the army or navy waiting to accumulate heat, if, if and if, then Tammi is the one. All the ifs cited here and doubt quite a few others we didn't find out about crowded up Louis's mind during the fight. We know because he sat next to us and helped us score the proceedings. None of the ifs would have come up at all unless Louis hadn't got the idea somewhere early in the bout that Tammi was likely to be the one some day. Of all the thousands of boys now trying, Mauriello is the only one to show possibilities.

Overcomes Handicap

The thing about Mauriello that impressed Joe most was the way the boy had learned to overcome a handicap. Mauriello has a defective right heel that prevents him from shifting off a straight-line attack as well as he should. He can't pivot fast enough or sidestep fast enough for the big time and, in the past, wily men with two fast feet on them haven't had much trouble going to one side of the kid and toppling him from there.

Pastor could have knocked the kid out at any time during this extraordinary flurry of sportsmanship, but he was so astonished by it and so incredulous and so sure there must be some trick in it that he lost his chance. He touched gloves with Mauriello like a man wondering where the bomb was hidden.

And while all this was going on, the Garden was resounding to the shrieks of toy whistles and the pop-pops of cap pistols as Mauriello's Gang Busters, out long past their bedtime, were loyally supporting their hero. We asked a group of them what they thought of Tammi risking his head to make a sportsman's apology for an accidental foul.

"Tammi is all right," they said, "but Pastor stinks." Yes sir, Mauriello will make a good champion, if — Side. He tried often enough, but every time he tried, Tammi, who was

Cardinals Score Twice in Tenth To Defeat Cubs

Redbirds Register 3-1 Victory To Sweep Two-Game Series

CHICAGO, May 26 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs momentarily snatched a hard-earned victory away from the Cardinals today, but the Redbirds scored two runs in the tenth inning to break up a one to one tie and defeat the Chicago team, 3 to 1, to sweep the two-game series.

Neither side had scored during a pitchers' duel between Max Lanier and Vern Olsen until the eighth inning when Terry Moore blasted out a homer.

The Cubs tied the score and knocked Lanier out in the ninth with which pinch-hitter Rip Russell drove in with a single.

Olsen, making his first start of the season since breaking two fingers on his pitching hand during spring training, weakened in the tenth and the Cardinals counted two more runs on as many hits and three walks to win the game. The box score:

Sitting in the West position on this deal in a friendly rubber game was one of the greatest card players the world has ever seen or ever will see, Sidney S. Lenz. Considering his distribution, his opening bid of 1-Heart was thoroughly sound and would have been made by 99% out of every 1,000 fine players. You can imagine, however, how it must have sounded to South, who was vulnerable while Mr. Lenz was not. Most certainly he had all of the earmarks of a psychic. His double, followed by his 4-Heart call, convinced North that Mr. Lenz had bid a psychic with a weak hand, and consequently he issued a slam invitation which his partner accepted.

Do you know anybody in the world who would not double that contract holding Mr. Lenz's hand, especially since he had such a good lead with his club honor sequence? As it turned out, only one trick was lost, to the Spade A, as the diamond finesse worked, so the contract was made.

Robert B. Sturtz Is Indicted by Federal Jury

Charged with Stealing from Federal Building and the Mails

BALTIMORE, May 26 (AP)—Robert B. Sturtz, former janitor at the Cumberland post office, was indicted by a Federal grand jury today on a charge of theft of a large number of articles from the Federal building in Cumberland and from the mails.

Returning the indictment, the grand jury, through its foreman, Franklin D. Claybrook, called attention to the situation and urged preventive steps.

Sturtz was accused in the indictment of stealing clothing and other materials from the Red Cross chapter in the Federal building and with the theft of a lawn mower, a cash drawer, two sets of cancelling type and a drill and brace owned by the government.

Another count in the indictment accused him of taking from the mails a ".22 caliber rifle, electric toasters, waffle irons, wrist watches, a radio and a machinist's reference handbook."

The indictment was filed before U. S. District Judge William C. Coleman.

In its report, the grand jury said:

"A case has been brought to our attention of numerous thefts from the postoffice at Cumberland, Md., extending over a period of approximately three years. It seems to us that this may have been a case of laxity on the part of those responsible and we recommend that proper steps be taken to prevent a similar occurrence in the future."

A. E. Helmick, United States post-office inspector who arrested Sturtz, a resident of Willow Brook road, said last night the trial will be held in federal court, Baltimore, on Friday.

He has been held in the county jail here under bond of $1,500 since he was given a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Wilbur V. Wilson on May 6. Thursday he will be removed to the Baltimore city jail where he will be held until time of his trial. He will be taken to Baltimore by Howard P. Loughrie, United States deputy marshal.

Helmick and Loughrie, who assisted in Sturtz's arrest, were the only witnesses to testify against him before the grand jury.

Employed at the post office since 1935, Sturtz, according to Helmick, was stealing from the Cumberland chapter, American Red Cross, and the parcel post mails over a period of from eighteen months to two years.

After he was arrested for theft of clothing and other articles from the Red Cross, Sturtz signed a complete confession admitting his guilt, Helmick said.

Later, when he was confronted with articles stolen from the parcel post mails and found in his home, Sturtz signed an additional confession in which he again admitted his guilt, Helmick related.

Stores and Banks Here Will Close On Memorial Day

Libraries, City Hall, Court
House Will Observe
Full Holiday

Stores as well as banks and state county and city offices in Cumberland will observe Memorial Day Saturday, May 30, by remaining closed throughout the day.

A check-up last evening revealed that the Cumberland Free Public Library, Washington street, and also the South End Station of the library in the Pennsylvania Avenue school will remain closed all day Saturday, also the city hall, court house and trial magistrates' court.

Postmaster James C. Shriner said that there will be no window service at the post office Saturday but mail will be distributed as usual, Stakem added.

The Mercantile Bureau of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce advises the public to do its shopping Friday. The stores will close at the usual hour, 5 p.m., on Friday, but will observe the legal holiday on Saturday.

Memorial Day exercises will be conducted in Rose Hill Cemetery by the local posts of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars following a parade from the state Armory, commencing at 10:30 a.m.

Charles Rock, Celanese Worker, Injures Back

Charles Rock, 17, Ridgeley, W. Va., suffered injuries to his back when he was struck by a weight at the Celanese plant, where he is employed, about 8 o'clock last night. Extent of his injuries is not known but attaches at Allegany hospital where he was admitted for treatment said his condition is not serious.

James Bolliford, 14, 457 Baltimore street, was treated in Allegany hospital at 4:35 p.m. yesterday for a possible fracture of his left wrist, suffered when he fell while running.

Many Jobs Are Not 'Essential,' Veterans Declare

Distinction Made by Paul
V. McNutt Is Cited by Local Post

A more careful distinction should be made by draft boards as well as employers between the terms "essential" and "irreplaceable" as applied to those coming up for assignment under the Selective Service act, according to Henry Hart Post No. 1411 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

A job may be "essential" but not always "irreplaceable" because older men or those deferred from draft requirements by physical handicaps could fill it, the post points out.

Attention was called to the distinction on a public letter issued last evening by the post bearing the signature of its commander, William L. McKenzie, and the official seal of the organization.

"It is the considered opinion of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars," the letter states, "that Allegany county's four local draft boards are granting deferments from the operations of the Selective Service act to many individuals, otherwise eligible, who are employed on jobs deemed 'essential to war production.'

McNutt Is Cited

"We would respectfully call your attention to the distinction in terms drawn by Paul V. McNutt, chief of the War Manpower Commission, when he speaks of 'essential' and 'irreplaceable.'

"On the contrary, we think that in the majority of cases the degree of skill required to perform many 'essential' war production jobs can be found in men who are removed by age or physical handicaps from the workings of the draft.

"We are convinced that the preservation of a fine balance between these two terms on the part of local boards is a prime necessity in realizing the fullest utilization of the manpower of the nation."

Deferment Held Improper

"Employers requesting deferments for any employee who is single or whose wife is self-supporting have evidently lost sight of the fact that their plant would be utterly worthless unless protected by strongly armed forces. An immense army and navy is essential to win this war and must be made up of men without dependents. Such men must not be deferred nor should deferment be requested for them by their employer; should any individual request deferment on his own behalf because of his occupational status or because of his position with a labor organization, it is clear that such person's head from his neck to his waist is the same hue as a Jap, and he should be branded by the public accordingly."

DISTRICT FORESTER WARNS AGAINST TWO "BOGUS TREE EXPERTS"

H. C. Buckingham, district forester, yesterday issued a warning to Cumberland residents to be on the lookout for two so-called "government experts" who are allegedly fleecing home owners by trimming trees and spraying shrubbery at exorbitant rates.

Buckingham said no one is authorized to represent themselves as government agents in this type of work. The men involved may be doing a good job, Buckingham said, but the mere fact that they are posing as government agents lends a distinctively "shady complex" to their appeal.

After reports were made to the auditors of the campaign Monday, chest workers were enthusiastic over a successful culmination of their drive but yesterday they said returns for today and tomorrow must show a marked increase if the goal is to be reached by noon Thursday.

The $32,377.53 collected to date in the campaign represents 56.5 per cent of the total goal of $57,272.77, it was announced at headquarters.

Special gifts sections still is leading in the amount of subscriptions returned but in the percentage column trails the national firms section by a narrow margin. National firms has subscribed $1,785, or 63.7 per cent, and must still obtain $1,015 to reach its goal. Special gifts have reported 62.3 per cent and must collect $12,694 to score 100 per cent.

The women's section is just one tenth of one per cent shy of the halfway mark with $2,721.98 reported and $2,778.02 yet to be subscribed.

The classified section has turned in $7,864.55 for 46.5 per cent and must still obtain $9,035.45.

Ten Per Cent Raise Given Hotel Employees

A ten per cent wage increase for between forty-five and fifty employees of the Algonquin hotel has been granted, effective June 1, according to Patrick L. Stakem, manager.

Stakem said the hotel company had recognized the increased cost of living and also granted the raise to enable its employees to invest in war stamps and bonds. Vacations with pay will continue as usual, Stakem added.

Court Orders Man
To Post Peace Bond

Frank Rodcap, of Goldman lane, this city, was ordered to post $200 peace bond in trial magistrate's court yesterday by Magistrate Frank A. Perdue.

Sadie Day Teets told the court Rodcap had threatened her with bodily harm.

Civilians 16 to 50 Eligible;
Beginners Receive
$1,020 a Year

It is no military secret that a modern army makes use of large amounts of radio and telephone equipment and that such equipment requires many skilled workers to keep it repaired, tested and in good working condition.

In order to accomplish this without withdrawing soldiers from field duty, the Signal Corps of the Army is employing civilians, sixteen to fifty years of age to work in repair shops. But first, they must be trained in the knowledge and skills necessary to do this kind of work.

Courses Planned Here

For this purpose, a pre-service training program has been arranged by the signal corps of the army, and announcement of a regis-stration date will be made shortly for courses to be given in Fort Hill high school, according to Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools.

Those who are to take the courses will be selected by the United States Civil Service Commission through mechanical aptitude test.

Applicants selected will be employed by the Signal Corps of the War Department and will be paid at the rate of $1,020 a year while taking the beginners' training course called "Mechanic Learner, Radio."

The young man, son of Mr. and Mrs. Noah G. Hazelrod, Castle Rock, Wash., enlisted in the army about a year ago and was stationed at Corregidor in the Philippine Islands. His uncle said he believed Hazelrod was missing before the surrender of the fort to the Japanese.

A gunner in the coast artillery, Hazelrod was cited for bravery in action on February 20, his uncle said.

Until two years ago he resided with his father who was caretaker of the city farm at Lake Koon. He also had been employed in the lumber business by his uncle.

Upon completion of the Mechanic Learner course the employee may be advanced to a class for "Radio Repairman Trainee" with pay at $1,440 a year. This advanced course may require four or five months and leads to employment as assistant radio repairman at $1,620 a year in Signal Corps maintenance and repair shop.

Before being employed, each Sig-
